We can't really make the case that the 1988 to 1991 Mazda RX-7 Convertible is a "sports car" in the traditional sense of the word. Its rather languid 9.7-second zero to 60 MPH time, brought to you by a normally aspirated, 160hp twin-rotor engine and a relatively porky 3,030-pound curb weight, made sure of that.

[ Home ] [ Up ] The trick to replacing the fuel filter is that you have to remove it from its bracket first so you can lower it a little and get a pair of pliers on the hose clamps. Also Mazda uses a lot of hose/filter pipe overlap so it is very difficult to get the hoses on and off. Start by releasing the fuel pressure....
