Such a result is often referred to as a 'revise and resubmit' decision. It doesn't mean you have failed, but it will normally mean going through a second viva voce examination once changes have been made. Your thesis may be recommended for an MPhil. If the scope of your work is insufficient to justify a PhD or if your original contribution to knowledge is not judged to be sufficiently significant, clear or convincing, the examiners may recommend that you be awarded an MPhil instead.
